

Steve Rizzo's Full Bio

Steve Rizzo was a national headline comedian with opening acts such as Drew Carey, Rosie O'Donnell and Dennis Miller, and has shared the marquee with Ellen DeGeneres, Rodney Dangerfield, Eddie Murphy and Jerry Seinfeld. He has appeared on the Comedy Channel and in his very own Showtime special earning him honors as a Showtime Comedy All-Star.

Then, at the pinnacle of his stand-up career, he walked away from comedy to pursue his true purpose and passion – to teach people how to be happy and successful no matter what their circumstances may be. He has been inducted into the Speakers Hall of Fame and is often called upon as the “go-to” guy on the topic of personal development for many network, cable and radio media outlets, including MSNBC and Oprah and Friends.

His immensely popular PBS special revealed why he's an expert on humor and the power of positive thinking. In fact, he's a PhB...A “Professional Humor Being.”

His best selling book, Becoming a Humor Being, as well as other products, can be found online at Steve Rizzo dot com.
